Dec 8th SF C'punks meeting: export controls on appeal

We're having yet another "Cypherpunks Dress-Up Day" on Monday, December 8th. Meet at the Federal Appeals Court in San Francisco, at 7th and Mission Streets (new location!). The hearings will start at 9AM, but several cases will precede ours, so we're guessing we'll start about 10:30. Dress sharp: TV crews, your fellow cypherpunks, and three esteemed judges will all be checking out your duds. Park at the Fifth & Mission garage, or take transit to 7th & Market and walk a block.

After the hearing, EFF will have a press conference down the block at the Best Western Motel, 121 7th Street. This will feature commentary from the EFF legal team and local First Amendment scholars, explaining the significance of what happened in the hearings, and answering questions.

Then we'll have a room reserved for lunch a few blocks away, at Annabelle's Bar & Bistro, 68 Fourth Street (between Market & Mission). We expect to get there by about 1:30 pm. It's a flat rate of $14 for lunch, and we can probably send splinter groups into the main restaurant if we overfill the room. The legal team will be there, as well as some of the EFF Board, and some potential donors to the case. (Want to be one?)

The original Bernstein case is over. We won it. The government appealed that decision, and is asking the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn Judge Patel's rulings as erroneous. Judges Myron H. Bright, Betty B. Fletcher, and Thomas Nelson have been reading the government's appeal, our response, and the government's reply. They'll hear twenty minutes from each side, and ask whatever questions they like. Then (some days or weeks later) they'll publish their decision.

The main issue before the Court is whether the export control laws and regulations violate the First Amendment. The Government is arguing that if their intent is to regulate something other than publication, they only need to show that the rules are "narrowly tailored" to serve a "substantial government interest." The government argues that if it meets that test, it does not have to worry about whether the regulations are a "prior restraint" on publication. Bernstein is arguing that what matters is whether the government actually regulates publication (no matter what its supposed "intent"), and that the government's export control regime is an unconstitutional prior restraint on Bernstein's speech.

Half-Baked knows that, but with his bowling-mentality, he thinks he has a better chance of throwing a strike if he puts a little spin on his balls, while twisting Jim's.

Was that FELONY 'Making a bad smell'? I farted in an IRS office once (on purpose). Am I a Jim Bell co-conspirator?
 Are my armpits considered a felony or a misdemeanor?

The government misuses my Social Security Number to steal my money. Where do I press charges? Can I place airline employees under citizen's arrest when they demand it?

The government's armed assault on Ma and Pa Bell's residence took place within hours of an email being sent to him containing a rough draft of a chapter of an InterNet published manuscript describing and lauding Bell's AP system.

>>For example, copies of the press release announcing the raid on Jim's home
